

18th annual CHICAGO RIVER DAY Saturday, May 8, 2010

Overview

Who

Friends of the Chicago River and 4,000 volunteers gather for a day of hands-on environmental work along the Chicago River. Volunteers include ordinary citizens and policy-makers alike who range in age from pre-schoolers to seniors, represent a wide variety of ethnic and economic backgrounds, and reside throughout the 673-square mile Chicago River watershed.

What

Volunteers work side-by-side to collect garbage and sort for recycling, remove invasive vegetation, spruce up river-edge trails, plant native seedlings and more. Friends is also expanding hands-on learning opportunities this year by introducing volunteers to simple everyday practices that conserve water, help stop unnecessary flooding, and prevent pollutants from running into the river

When

Saturday, May 8, 2010
9 a.m. to noon

Where

Sixty sites along the banks of the Chicago River, as well as five “watershed thinking” sites, from as far north as Route 120 in Lake County to as far south as Blue Island in Cook County. A complete list of sites will be available at chicagoriver.org.

Why become a sponsor

Critical to the success of Chicago River Day is the support of sponsors that invest in the efforts of Friends’ volunteers. Even with thousands of dollars of donated goods and services, it costs Friends about $13 for each Chicago River Day volunteer. This covers supplies like gloves, garbage bags, permits, insurance, plants, and the t-shirts that all volunteers receive and wear with pride to show their support for the river.

Sponsors’ support translates into 11,400 volunteer hours in just one day. In 2009, Chicago River Day volunteers pulled 28 tons of trash and debris from the river’s banks, repaired miles of river-edge trails, and removed 200 30-gallon trash bags of harmful invasive plants. Companies and people like YOU make all this possible.

In return for your support, sponsors have the opportunity for substantial market exposure, employee involvement, new found goodwill toward your company, and the knowledge that your contribution made a tangible, measurable difference.
